The latest trend in buffalo bulls is the 50-inch benchmark, which Ukujabula reached twice in one year.

In March 2012, a buffalo bull was born in one of the East African buffalo herds on Ukujabula and soon we came to realise that this bull has the potential to become an outstanding breeding bull. Zeus originates from a buffalo herd with an impeccable disease-free record since the establishment of the herd in 2002. Zeus is certainly one of the top bulls in South Africa and now belongs to Woody Cape Wildlife, which bought him from Ukujabula at this year's Bloodline Africa Auction.

Yet another 50-inch potential, called Remington (right hand page), was born just one year after Zeus. Remington measured 49" at the young age of five years four months with an outstanding big body and horn mass. Be on the lookout for Ukujabula buffaloes – not every buffalo breeder can breed two 50" bulls in one year.

"Remington is one of the best buffaloes we have ever bred. He has a great temperament and is one of the best-balanced bulls I have seen", says Nico van den Berg, who has a passion for buffaloes and especially East African buffaloes.
